

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for non-destructive hyperthermia therapies in the treatment of pathologies such as, rheumatoid inflammations, tendonitis, acute inflammatory forms, is provided including an active electrode for generating electromagnetic radio-frequency radiation for application of the radiation to a skin portion of the human body. The apparatus further includes a reference electrode and a temperature sensor for the detection of the skin temperature.

5